Art Unit: 3654

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim1-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. It is not clear how the side shields are movable between the closed and open configurations. It is not clear what kind of force is required and how the force is to be applied.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bishop (US 474518). The side shields AA are concave in the same way as applicant's device (see below). It should be noted that the shields AA can be removed from the core and positioned with the outside walls facing the roll therefore forming a convex shape facing the roll. It is deemed that there is friction between the plugs B and the core C (as opposed to being frictionless) therefore forming a "friction fit". All the pieces are attached together as shown in the figures. Adhesive tape would have been an obvious choice of material to be used in conjunction with the apparatus. When adhesive tape is the material, the device can be opened to facilitate dispensing, if desired.

Applicant's arguments filed 9/5/02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

As noted above, it is not clear how the side shields are movable between the closed and open configurations. It is not clear what kind of force is required and how the force is to be applied. Since the same laws of Physics govern all movements, it is not known how or where in the known universe, a movement can be effected without the use of force. Nothing in the specification describes exactly how the side shields are movable between the closed and open configurations. It is not known what kind of force (twisting? Pressurizing? Pulling? Pushing?) is required, how the force is to be applied, where the force the force is to be applied. That a force is required is a given, unless applicant can show that in some devices, things move by themselves. One way that that the side shields are moved between the closed and open configurations is advanced in the rejection above.

Applicant's use of the words "concave" and "convex" is deemed acceptable although it should be noted that the only curve occurs at the corners arising from the flat base. Since devices AA of Bishop also has a flat base and curved corners, the side pieces AA of Bishop can also be considered "concave" as in applicant's device.

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., "free to be moved into an open configuration") are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993). The device of Bishop can be moved to the open configuration as claimed.

As noted above, adhesive tape would have been an obvious choice of material to be used in conjunction with the apparatus. When adhesive tape is the material, the device can be opened to facilitate dispensing, if desired.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
